PRESENTER BIOGRAPHIES UNCTAD

Raúl JAVALOYES works for UNCTAD’s Technical Cooperation Service. As a Programme Officer, he performs tasks in connection with the general undertaking of UNCTAD technical cooperation operations. UNCTAD technical cooperation is carried out in partnership with other agencies that provide trade-related technical assistance, in consonance with their respective mandates, expertise, and areas of comparative advantage. In delivery of its technical cooperation services, UNCTAD coordinates its activities with its partners, and in particular, members of the United Nations Inter-Agency Cluster on Trade and Productive Capacity. He holds two Master’s Degrees in Economics, one from the Complutense University and the other from the University Institute “Ortega y Gasset”, both in Madrid.

Nicolas MAYSTRE is an Economic Affairs Officer at UNCTAD’s Division on Globalization and Development Strategies. Before joining UNCTAD in 2011, he worked two years with the United Nations Department on Economic and Social Affairs in New York. Nicolas holds a PhD in Economics from the University of Geneva and a Master’s degree from the Geneva Graduate Institute, where he used to work as a research and teaching assistant.

Kalman KALOTAY is an Economic Affairs Officer at UNCTAD’s Division on Investment and Enterprise. Currently he is part of the team that prepares the UNCTAD Investment Policy Reviews. Between October 1996 and September 2009 he worked with UNCTAD’s World Investment Report team. He also served as associate (1996-2003) and deputy editor (2003-2004) of UNCTAD’s Transnational Corporations journal. Previously, he worked on issues related to economic cooperation among developing countries (1990–1996). Before joining the United Nations, Mr. Kalotay taught international economics at the Corvinus University in Budapest, Hungary (1983-1990). He holds a PhD in International Economics from the same university. His work and publications focus mainly on foreign direct investment in various regions and countries of the world, with special attention to economies in transition.

Rashmi Banga is currently Economic Affairs Officer in the Unit for Economic Integration and Cooperation among Developing Countries in UNCTAD. She was Senior Economist and Officer-in-Charge of UNCTAD-India Project from 2005-2010 and former Professor of Economics in School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, India. She received her doctorate from Delhi School of Economics, India, where she specialized in development economics, international economics and econometrics. She has published extensively on various FDI and trade related issues. She was awarded International Economic Development Research Award (IEDRA) of 2005 by EXIM Bank of India and has been a recipient of two Gold Medals for her research on globalization and development from Global Development Network (GDN). She is also a board member of Academy of International Business (AIB), Michigan University.

Jan HOFFMANN has been working as trade facilitation, port and shipping specialist with UNCTAD in Geneva since 2003; presently as Chief of the Trade Facilitation Section. He is in charge of several trade facilitation projects, UNCTAD’s Transport Newsletter, and chapters of the annual Review of Maritime Transport. Previously, he spent six years with the United Nations in Santiago de Chile, and two years with the International Maritime Organization in London and Santiago. Prior to this, he held part-time positions as assistant professor, import – export agent, translator, consultant and seafarer for a tramp shipping company. Jan has studied in Germany, United Kingdom and Spain, and holds a doctorate degree in economics from the University of Hamburg.

Robert HAMWEY is an Economic Affairs Officer at UNCTAD’s Division on International Trade in Goods and Services, and Commodities. He was a Fulbright Professor for Environmental Issues at the University of Aleppo in Syria, and an Associate Professor for International Environmental Affairs at the Swiss International Academy of the Environment in Geneva. In 1999 he began collaborating with the United Nations on trade and environment issues, first with UNEP and UNCTAD in Geneva and later with ESCWA in Beirut. Since 2010 he is working on research issues related to climate change, trade and the environment, and the green economy. Mr. Hamwey completed his PhD at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire and holds a Masters degree in Economics from the University of Geneva.

Michael LIM is an Economic Affairs Officer at UNCTAD’s Division on Technology and Logistics. He works on technology and innovation issues. In particular, he prepares the Science, Technology and Innovation Policy (STIP) Reviews of developing countries, which aim to evaluate the science, technology and innovation capabilities and technological and innovative performance of a country, and review the national policies on STI development. Michael has also worked on various other issues of direct relevance to development in developing countries, including foreign direct investment, foreign portfolio investment and capital market development, international capital flows, financial crises and external debt. Before joining UNCTAD in 1995 he worked for the Central Bank of The Bahamas in the areas of banking systems, financial regulation, monetary policy, balance of payments and international trade.

Guoyong LIANG is an Economic Affairs Officer at UNCTAD’s Division on Investment and Enterprise. He has been one of main authors of the annual World Investment Report (WIR) since 2005. Mr. Liang holds a PhD in International Business from the Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University. He taught at Shanghai University of Finance and Economics during 1998-2001, and had managerial experience in China’s financial and ICT sectors. Mr. Liang has published more than 20 academic papers. He is the author of New Competition: Foreign Direct Investment and Industrial Development in China (published in 2004) and the co-author of a number of other books.

Anthony MILLER is an Economic Affairs Officer with UNCTAD’s Division on Investment and Enterprise. He is a specialist on issues of corporate social responsibility (CSR) and corporate governance, with special emphasis on how these issues impact developing countries. He is an expert in the ISO Working Group on Social Responsibility and a frequent participant in the ICG and the OECD working groups on CSR. His ongoing work includes research projects on corporate governance disclosure in emerging markets, the CSR performance of transnational corporations, and the responsible investment practices of institutional investors. Prior to joining UNCTAD, Mr. Miller was an executive in the automotive industry with postings in India, Singapore and China. He holds a BA from Trent University, Canada, and an MPhil and PhD from Cambridge University, England.